A survey of United States government, emphasizing the Constitution, functions of political parties, pressure groups, the relationships of citizens to the government, the development of administrative control, and problems unique to each of the three branches of government.

PS-104 Introduction to Policy Debate Credits: 3
Term Offered: Fall Term
Course Type(s): PSPA
This course is designed to introduce students to the activity of policy debate competition. Students will develop research and organizational skills, learn how to deliver and refute arguments, and will participate in classroom debate scrimmages in preparation for weekend long off campus debate tournaments against students from other universities.

PS-105 Introduction to Public Policy Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PO, PSPA, SS.SV
Analysis of policy-making processes in American society, including health care, the environment, education, crime, and employment; application of competing perspective and value orientation to policy areas; impact on specific groups within American society and the global community.

PS-107 Introduction to Social Justice Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): SS.SV
Provides a conceptual and practical basis to understand, interpret, and solve social problems in fair, equitable, and just ways. Also listed as SO-107.

PS-108 Model United Nations Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): RD
International relations is a subfield of political science that examines the nature of power and its distribution around the world. Scholars interested in international relations have developed a variety of simulations to seek greater understanding of state behavior. This course will simulate the policies and procedures of the dominant organs of the United Nations in order to gain a greater understanding of international issues like climate change, terrorism, humanitarian aid, international trade and commerce, and war and peace.

PS-109 Civic Engagement and Leadership Credits: 1
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): None
Civic responsibility, engagement, and leadership are encouraged through active student involvement in a community or campus organization. Students will perform twelve hours of public service over the course of the semester working for an organization that addresses a particular issue of public concern. Also listed as SO-109.

PS-198 Special Topics in Political Science (100 Level) Credits: 1-3
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): None
An intensive study of a particular subject or problem in political science to be announced prior to registration. May be conducted on either a lecture-discussion or a seminar basis. If a prerequisite is required it will be announced in the course schedule.

PS-199 Reading and Research in Political Science Credits: 1-3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): None
Guided study of a topic in political science not substantially treated in a regular course, under the direction of a member of the political science faculty. Extensive reading and at least one written report are required. Prior permission of the directing professor and department chair is required to take this course.

PS-202 State and Local Government Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): EN-101 and EN-102.
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSAM, WT
A comparative study of state, local, and suburban politics in the United States with special emphasis on New Jersey and the New Jersey-New York metropolitan area.

PS-206 Comparative Politics Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSCG, SS.SV
Comparative politics is the sub-field within political science that examines the reasons why countries vary in their domestic political institutions, the political behavior of their leaders and citizens, their levels and rates of development, and their public policies. In this course, we will analyze three main questions that are considered central to research in comparative politics: 1. How do democratic countries vary in their political institutions, and why do these differences matter? 2. Why are some countries democracies and others authoritarian? What are the consequences? 3. Why are some countries wealthy while others remain mired in poverty? The goal is not only to acquaint you with these questions and the debates surrounding them, but also to help you develop the tools to reach your reasoned conclusions about them. To do so, you will need fundamental vocabulary and basic social science research tools. The "vocabulary" part includes: 1. an understanding of what the social sciences are all about; 2. what political scientists mean precisely by the terms they use (e.g., development, democracy, proportional representation, bureaucracy); and 3. the kinds of institutions that countries now have or have had recently.

PS-212 Workshop in NJ's County Pre-Trial Prosecution System: Legal and Political Aspects Credits: 3
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): PSAL, PSAM
Legal and political analysis of New Jersey's pretrial prosecution process. The roles, pressures, attitudes, and strategies of the county prosecution system personnel will be subjects for field research seminar study.

PS-213 Legal Analysis and Writing Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): EN-101 and EN-102.
Term Offered: Fall Term
Course Type(s): PSAL, WT
This course focuses on the fundamentals of legal analysis and writing. Effective legal analysis and writing are key skills required to succeed in law school and the legal profession. Students will understand the role of an attorney, analyzing their client's legal issue, drafting legal writing, and advocating for a legal position. In addition to written briefs and advocacy, students will participate in a series of mock trial simulations to develop their legal analysis and advocacy skills.

PS-221 Early Political Thought Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): EN-101 and EN-102.
Term Offered: Fall Term
Course Type(s): WT
Consideration of the major political theories of the Western world and their relevance to contemporary politics. Semester I: Plato to Marx. Semester II: later nineteenth-and twentieth-century political thinkers, with special emphasis on the behavioral school.

PS-222 Modern Political Thought Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): EN-101 and EN-102.
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): WT
Consideration of the major political theories of the Western world and their relevance to contemporary politics. Semester I: Plato to Marx. Semester II: later nineteenth- and twentieth-century political thinkers, with special emphasis on the behavioral school.

PS-223 Introduction to Global Sustainability Credits: 3
Term Offered: Fall Term
Course Type(s): MEBP, SUS
Introduces students to the global, environmental, economic and social foundations of sustainability and the policy and scientific challenges involved with accommodating population growth, development, and resources used while assuring that future generations will have the natural and economic resources to support an enhanced quality of life. An emphasis will be placed on understanding of sustainability principles from multiple perspectives and cross-disciplinary application of sustainable practices. Also listed as BY-221.

PS-224 Theories of Political Economy Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): EN-101 and EN-102.
Course Type(s): WT
Theories of political economy studies the intersection of the state (politics) and markets (economy) to explain policy outcomes (student loans, sin taxes, agricultural subsidies, trade rules, etc.) as well overall economic development of nations. Economists assume a world of rational individuals pursuing their self-interest through markets - i.e., Adam Smith's "invisible hand" - while political scientists assume a world of rational actors seeking to maximize their political power. Combined, political economy presents a world in which political actors are influenced, guided and constrained by markets, budget constraints, and resource scarcity while economic markets reflect political power relationships surrounding property rights, contract enforcement, regulations, and tax rules. Drawing the line between state/public and market/private is a political process yet one with clear economic consequences. Take the example of healthcare. Two possibilities exist - private (market-based) or public (state-based) - and the choice boils down to a political process (i.e., executive, legislative and judicial branches plus interest groups) occurring in a context influenced by market constraints (i.e., costs, budget constraints, scarcity, taxes, and insurance).

PS-230 Transitions to Democracy Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSCG, PSIP
Particular countries and the global community at large have a stake in democracy's future. This course surveys the vast literature on the topic of democratic transitions in order to build an intellectual tool set that is appropriate for analyzing the current status of democracy around the world. At the end of this course, students develop an understanding of the root causes (political, economic, and cultural) that encourage and undermine democracy over a range of country case studies.

PS-240 Environmental Ethics Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSIP
This course will examine the ethical arguments/repercussions related to the environment. Topics will include the principles involved in combatting environmental problems such as pollution, loss of species and habitats, climate change, environmental justice, food insecurity, and economic and political impacts. As the environment faces a growing number of threats from human activities these core issues are becoming increasingly important. The purpose and importance of this course is to create a learning environment that stresses the understanding of ethics, its development as a major field, and its necessary role in understanding the environment.

PS-250 Fundamentals of Social Science Research Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): TL
An introduction to the different ways in which social scientists study the social world. Designed to develop students' understanding of the major purposes of social research as well as the major types of quantitative and qualitative research designs. Students will learn the research process itself, from conceptualization and measurement to operationalization, sampling, ethics, and the analysis and presentation of their proposed study. As part of the research process, students will use spreadsheet, presentation, and word processing software to build datasets, analyze data, and design and present research. Also listed as SO-250. Sociology majors should register for SO-250. This course is for Political Science majors only or other majors with instructor consent.

PS-274 Global Inequalities Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): BI.EL, GLS, GU, RE, SJS, SUS
A sociological and political look at global inequalities. Explores diverse themes and aspects of a global society, including the forces that are causing and perpetuating global inequalities. It also looks at the social, political, economic, and cultural consequences of those inequalities. Also listed as SO-274.

PS-275 Politics and Policy of South America Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSCG, PSPA, RE
Introduces students to the critical political issues and policy challenges in South America. Hemisphere integration continues to accelerate, and political and economic developments in South America increasingly impact the United States. Immigration, trade, drugs, and the environment require hemisphere collaboration among a diverse set of peoples and governments. The course surveys contemporary politics and economics, as well as the basic regional history in a way that invites comparison and the development of regional (Southern Cone, Andean Region) and hemispheric perspectives on the challenges linked to hemispheric integration.

PS-277 Gender and Politics Credits: 3
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): GS, PSAM
The study of gender and how it relates to politics. Includes an analysis of the women's movement through historical literature by and about women. Also includes feminist and gender theories, the mass behavior of women, elite women, and public policy as it relates to women's issues.

PS-278 International Political Economy Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): GLS, PSIP, RE
The role that international institutions, transnational actors, and foreign governments play in the production, distribution, and consumption of resources will be investigated. Since much of international political economy has to do with various thinkers and schools of thought, an appropriate emphasis will be given to some of the important works in the field. For example, we will be analyzing the contributions of Liberal, Marxist, and Statist thinkers and the various perspectives that have been used to analyze the way policies are made, agreements are reached, and resources distributed. Following the establishment of this theoretical framework, we will focus on the growth of regional integration, the role of hegemony in maintaining the stability of international systems, strategies of economic development, and the role of multinational and transnational companies in both the industrial and developing world. In essence, this course is concerned with looking at the relationship between power and wealth and the balance between the state and the market. Also listed as SO-278.

PS-288 Cooperative Education: Political Science Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-102 or PS-103
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): EX2
Through actual work experience, connects classroom learning and real-world practice. Under the guidance of a faculty advisor, students select a cooperative placement. Students will spend ten to fifteen hours per week at their placement. Departmental approval is required to take this course. Repeatable for credit.

PS-289 Political Science Internship Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-102 or PS-103 and the completion of sixty credits
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): EX1
An internship in a political office. The student will keep a daily log and develop a research topic on the basis of the log and experience. By working an eight-hour day from Monday through Friday, the intern will develop firsthand knowledge of a state or local office and will secure an experience rating for future positions after graduation. Departmental approval is required to take this course.

PS-290 Media Law Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): COCCL, COCST, COJPT, COMCS, CORTT, PSAL
How the mass media is constrained and protected by the law and court interpretation. Overview will focus on libel, copyright, obscenity, free press, and other legal/illegal aspects of mass communication. Also listed as CO-290.

PS-298 Special Topics in Political Science (200 Level) Credits: 1-3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): None
An intensive study of a particular subject or problem in political science to be announced prior to registration. May be conducted on either a lecture-discussion or a seminar basis. If a prerequisite is required it will be announced in the course schedule.

PS-299 Reading and Research in Political Science Credits: 1-3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): None
Guided study of a topic in political science not substantially treated in a regular course, under the direction of a member of the political science faculty. Extensive reading and at least one written report are required. Prior permission of the directing professor and department chair is required to take this course.

PS-301 Political Parties and Elections Credits: 3
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): PSAM
Historical and functional analysis of United States political parties; the workings of party machinery and practical politics, including national, state, and local party activities, election procedures, third party movements, interest groups, and public opinion.

PS-302 Data Analysis for the Social Sciences Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-250 or SO-250
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): None
Introduces students to techniques used to evaluate social science data; addresses strategies for analyzing qualitative data and presents social science applications of quantitative techniques such cross tabulation, t-test, and regression. Students will learn to apply procedures to test hypotheses. Also listed as SO-302.

PS-304 Public Opinion and Propaganda Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-102 or PS-103
Course Type(s): None
The effects of mass communications upon political opinion, control of news, dissemination agencies, propaganda techniques, and pressure groups; the role of opinion polls and survey techniques.

PS-305 The American Congress Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSAM
An analysis of the structure, organization, and functioning of Congress; the relationship between Congress and the executive and judicial branches of government, the importance of the Congressional investigative powers and of quasi-legislative agencies, boards and commissions.

PS-306 The American Presidency Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): EN-101 and EN-102.
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSAM, WT
The various theories of the presidency; the president's relationship with Congress, the public, the party structure, the administration, and the vice-president; and the president's powers and responsibilities in foreign and military affairs.

PS-307 The American Judiciary Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSAL, PSAM, SJL
Systematic study of the judiciary at the federal and New Jersey level, including an analysis of the jurisdictional limits of courts and the procedural rules for actions in each respective system; an intensive study of institutions of law (legal systems, federal courts, state courts) and interpreters and consumers of law (judges, lawyers, litigants, interest groups) as well as a study of the impact of court decisions on federal and state public policy.

PS-308 Resistance and Revolution: Exploring Social Movements & Social Change Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): SJS
Social movements are sustained efforts through which people act collectively to create or resist changes in political, social, economic, legal, and/or cultural systems, as well as specific institutions. Through a combination of theoretical exploration and case studies, this course is designed to generate an in-depth understanding of social movements of the past and the present. We will address questions such as: What events precipitate movements? How do political, social, economic and cultural forces shape movements and influence their outcomes? How have artistic works and creative tactics been used for pursuing social change? In what ways have social media changed the landscape of social action? How have social scientists researched and participated in movements? The course will also explore the work of organizing, strategizing, recruiting participants, leadership development, and tactical decision-making, in addition to the other forms of "on the ground" work within movements. Also listed as SO-308

PS-309 Political Science Internship Seminar Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): EX5
Practical experience in the operation of a legal, political campaign, or government position to guide the intern's future professional development. The student will keep a journal and produce a report analyzing the intern's experience and/or work environment. Repeatable for credit.

PS-311 Introduction to Constitutional Law Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSAL
Examination of United States constitutional law by the case method: the federal government and the relative powers of Congress, the President, and the Supreme Court.

PS-312 Constitutional Law: Civil Rights Credits: 3

Examination of United States constitutional law by the case method: Constitutional, civil, and political liberty with special emphasis on the First, Fifth, and Fourteenth Amendments.

PS-313 The Pre-Trial Prosecution System Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSAL, SJL
The pre-trial prosecution process as a political system. The roles, attitudes, and strategies of those authorities who allocate values within the system are examined. Also listed as CJ-313.

PS-315 Urban Politics Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-102 or PS-103
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): PSAM, PSPA, RE
The problems of urban life as they are manifested in the political process, the interaction of cities with other levels of government, and the performance of political functions within the urban environment.

PS-324 American Political Thought Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-102 or PS-103
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): PSAM
The development of political thought in the United States with emphasis on the late nineteenth- and twentieth-century philosophers and statesmen, along with the development of ideology of groups in American politics. Also listed as PL-324.

PS-325 Survey Research Consulting Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-250 or SO-250 or CO-292 or SW-409 or PY-220 or CJ-315 or HLS-315 or HE-290 or NU-355 or permission of the instructor
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): None
Provides students with real-world experience in the application of social science methodology, specifically survey research. The course is designed to strengthen social science research methods skills as well as competencies in professional communication and collaboration. Students, as a class, will work on a small-scale project (e.g. needs assessment, program evaluation, marketing study, etc.) for a "client" - a non-profit organization, government agency, small business, or academic institute - who has agreed to collaborate as a service learning opportunity. The client is not paying for this service and understands the limitations of working with consultants-in-training. However, the course will strive to adhere to the highest standards in both survey research practice and the client-consultant relationship. Also listed as SO-325.

PS-330 Environmental Policy Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): MEBP, PSAM, PSPA, SUS
Introduces social, political, and organizational processes that influence and shape environmental and natural resource policy. Focuses on the political arena and examines how citizens and community groups influence legislative initiatives. Also listed as PS-330.

PS-332 Climate Change Adaptation and Policy Credits: 3
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): MEBP, SUS
Climate Change Adaptation and Policy provides a survey of the global engagements surrounding climate change adaptation and policy that currently affects billions around the globe. The subject matter covered includes understanding how to evaluate the proxies and impacts of climate change, the geography of climate change, and the policies and planning tools that are used in addressing the current and forecasted effects of climate change. The class includes local, regional, national, and international examples within a mixed-methods approach that simultaneously uses a scientific, natural processes understanding that is juxtaposed with policy-based initiatives that deal with the real-life costs and procedures in addressing climate change. Also listed as GO-332.

PS-350 American Political Economy Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-103
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): PO, PSAM, PSPA
Examines the institutional, economic, and political factors that influence the economic decision-making process at all levels of government. Analysis of the theories, processes, principles, and concepts of public budgeting and governmental management of the economy. Also listed as PO-350.

PS-351 Public Administration Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-102 or PS-103
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): PSPA
The administration, organization, management, financial, and personnel problems within the various governmental agencies; problems arising from the interrelations of the three branches of government.

PS-352 Public Personnel Administration Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-102 or PS-103
Course Type(s): PSPA
The nature of the career service in government, effective tools in personnel administration, and the changing role of the Civil Service Commission.

PS-353 Public Budgeting Process Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-102 or PS-103
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): PSPA
A treatment of the budget as an instrument of public policy and marginal control of public programs.

PS-355 Administrative Law and Regulation Credits: 3
Prerequisite(s): PS-102 or PS-103
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): PSAL, PSPA, SJL
The federal and state regulatory agencies, commissions, and boards; how they function, the legal procedures they employ, to what extent they are successful in serving and protecting the community, and efforts to effect their reform.

PS-360 Political Economy in the Developing World Credits: 3
Term Offered: Spring Term
Course Type(s): PSIP, SJS
This course introduces undergraduate students to the core concepts, theories and debates of political economy in the context of developing world countries. The primary unit of analysis will be the national case study (i.e., Brazil or Indonesia) rather than the international system or international institutions (for example, World Bank, IMF or global financial markets.) The aim is to provide the intellectual tool set to evaluate questions and challenges of political and economic development and modernization across a range of national case studies from Latin America, the Caribbean, Africa, the Middle East and Asia. Also listed as SO-360.

The evolution of law, social forces influencing law, social impact of law, and law as an instrument of social control and social change. Also listed as SO-364.

PS-365 Sports Law I: Governance and Regulation Credits: 3
Term Offered: All Terms
Course Type(s): PSAL
Sports law is a subfield of law and political science that examines a broad mixture of laws that apply to athletes and the sports they play. Many legal scholars argue that the term "sports law" is a misnomer because "sports" represent the convergence of activity and entertainment that is governed by the legal system in its entirety. Accordingly, this course provides an overview of many areas of the law, particularly in the realm of governance and regulations. Through the assigned readings and research projects, students will gain valuable insight as to how "sports" are regulated by the laws of our country but also by the governing bodies and institutions that oversee the formation, activity, and "entertainment" of each sport. This course is related to Sports Law II: The Business of Sports Law in that both courses provide student with in-depth analysis of law as it relates to sports but also how "sports law" impacts society, business and the economy. However, the courses are non-sequential and students can be successful in each course independent from the other as they are both designed to be introductory courses related to governance and regulation, and legal implications in the business of sports, respectively.
